I love to play and have fun

You can't seriously think these posts are from real women,
cause buddy there are no actual real babes
left here.

Even in this crazy recession,
real ladies
do not post here looking for guys to hang with

There is nothing here anymore but crooks looking to take your money and cops looking to arrest Jons

Don't get caught in another scam...

There is a place left where everyday girls
go and the five-o
legally have to stay away from.

That is a sight called
□□□□□□□□. □-□

Just search for it on

and its there in the number 1 spot..

I don't know how much longer it will last so you better head there before its to late!

stamford Petco (Stamford)

Beautiful female looked like maybe

you were getting some feeder fish.

you were wearing a tank top,
which revealed a bit of artwork on your back.

I walked past wearing a red hat.

Looking for Rachel (Upper West Side)

We used to have lunch occasionally in your neighborhood near the 72nd street 1,2,3 station.

You always picked great lunch spots and

I would come uptown from Tribeca to meet you.

We had discussed other non-eating activities but that never happened.

You winter in Florida and love Tucker Carlson.

I lost your email and I would love to reconnect.

I am working in Midtown near Rock Center now.

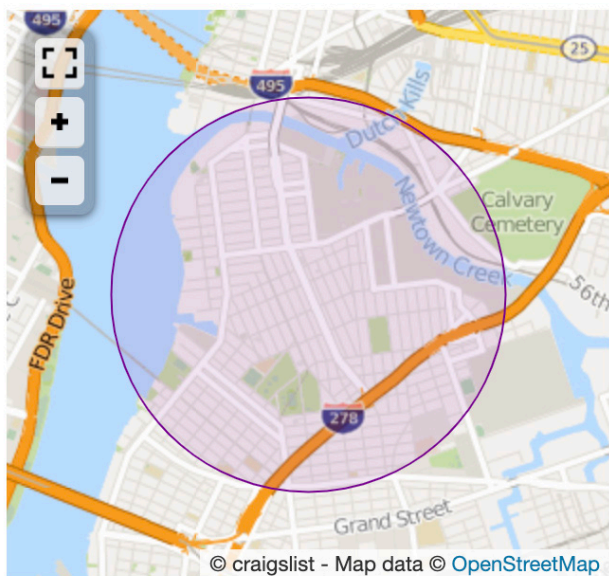

I hope you see this.

sackett near smith

you were with your father (carroll gardens)

you are radiant

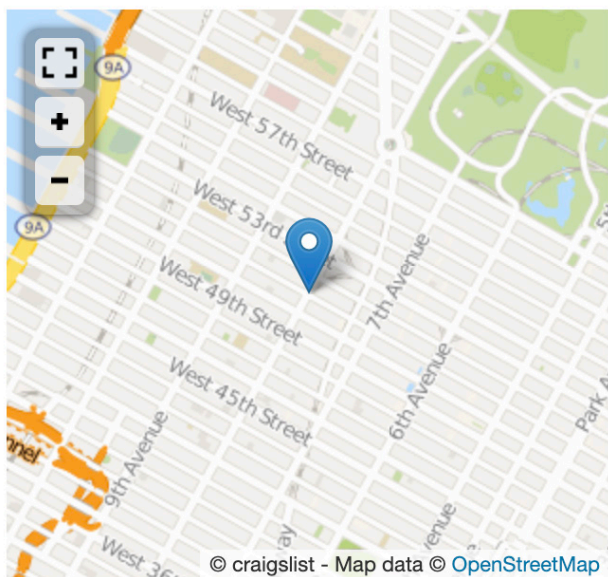

short girl with half hair blonde dancing in HOLO this weekend (ridgewood)

you were dancing in the main floor all night long dressed all black

and your haird half blonde and half black is super hot,

i hope i see you again.

8th Avenue near West 51st street

Joseph on the Bike - Hell's Kitchen (Midtown West)

The evening of Sunday, Feb 23
around 9 PM,

I (Short King, beard, blue jacket)
was crossing 8th avenue around 51st street or so and you (Short King, numerous piercings, glasses)

pulled up on a grey pedal-assist Citibike
to stop at the red light.

We kept exchanging glances as I crossed the street, then I turned around and beckoned you over to the sidewalk.

We exchanged greetings
and info,
and a kiss.

I explained that I live in Bushwick
and you said

“nearby, but not Hell’s Kitchen... Theater District.”

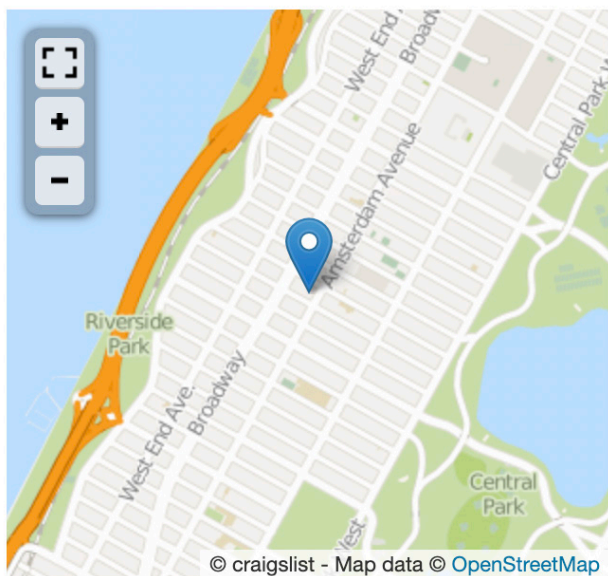

I jokingly said that all the HK guys say that.

You gave me your # and I texted right away.

No response since then.

It seems that either
I got the number wrong
or you decided you’re not interested.

If it’s the former, let’s make this right.

Amsterdam Ave near W75

Man walking his dog on Amsterdam Ave (Upper West Side)

I feel so stupid.

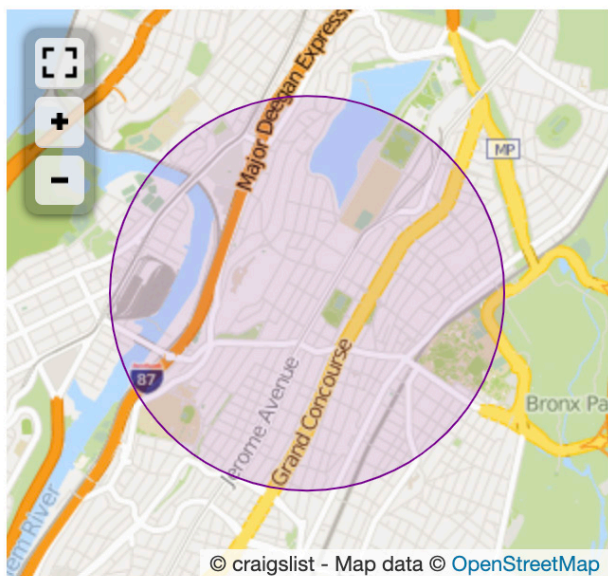

I walked past you on Amsterdam Ave today at about 5.30pm - 6. You were walking your dog.

I shoulda come back
and said hi.

I'm an idiot.

You had the best smile.

We never meet and you disappear my Lady (bronx)

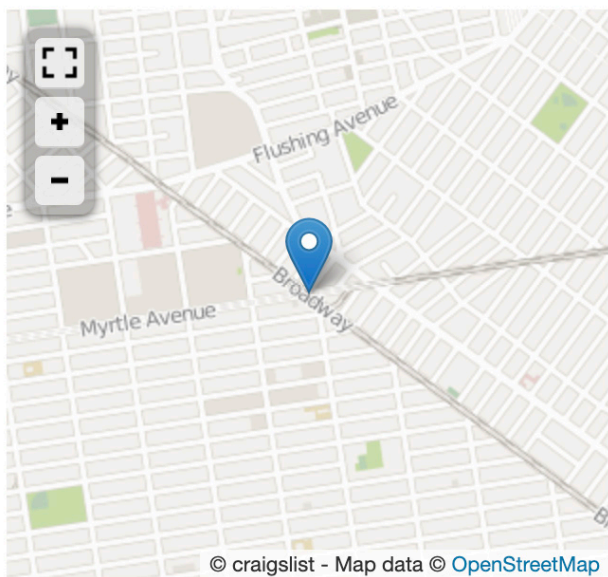

Looking for a Beautiful Woman

We wrote for several months and then I had to leave the area for a month.

Since my return
I didn't know anything

even though I was sending emails,

now you don't reply
anymore

myrtle near broadway

manhattan bound j-train, you were in all black (brooklyn)

i think you got on at myrtle-broadway,
i was chatting between two friends.
we locked eyes at one point, and i looked away quickly,

and then back,
and then away,
and then back again.

you kept staring the whole time.

you were in a black sweater
with a cross body bag, wired headphones,
had a thin earring.

was in a tan coat and had rimless glasses.

if you think this is you, reply with the stop we both got off at.

Beverly near Veronica Pl

Flatbush Drive By - white Honda, white dog (Flatbush)

This might be a stretch. You might be new to the neighborhood. I was driving by you at the corner of Veronica and Beverly.

You were sitting outside with your little white bulldog(?).
I was in my white Honda,

the sun was in my eyes,
I was being honked at to move,
but I was staring at you.
Your smile

was contagious.

I was wearing a white baseball cap and my beard was a bit scraggly.
I was smiling too.

I didn't know what to do.

I wanted to say Hi
so badly
but I was on my way

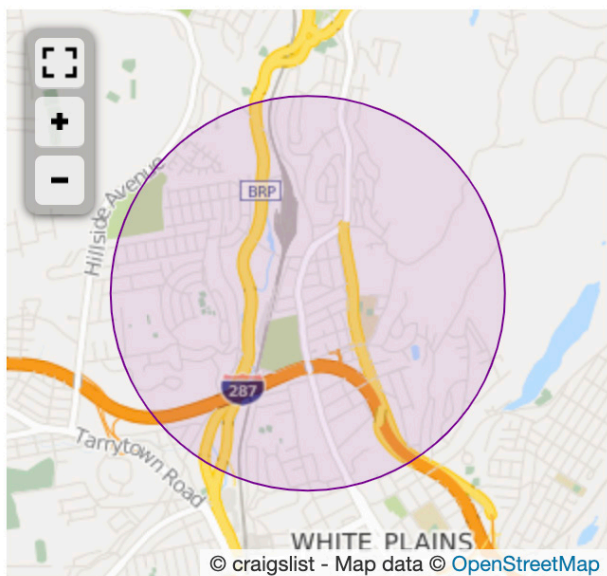

to take my dog for a walk in another neighborhood
- she was in the back seat.

I let her go
potty
and raced back

but you were gone.

I stood on the corner
and looked around.

My heart sank a bit.
I hope I see you around.

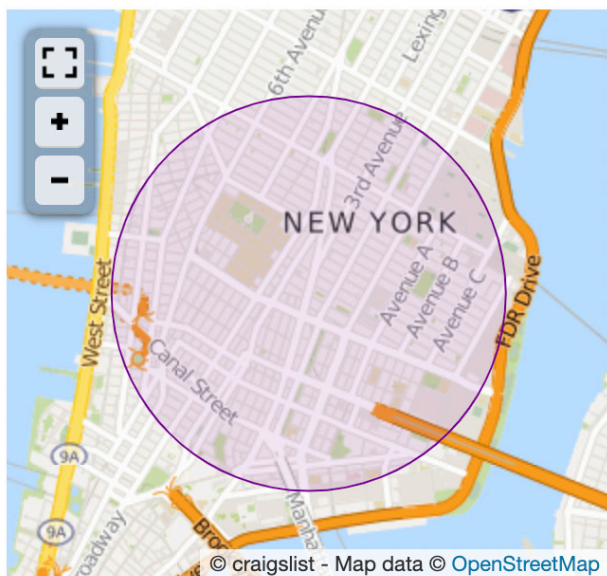

Missed you (White Plains)

Running Saturday.

Couldn't linger but wish I had.

Need a running
partner

Bowery near Bond st / E 2nd st

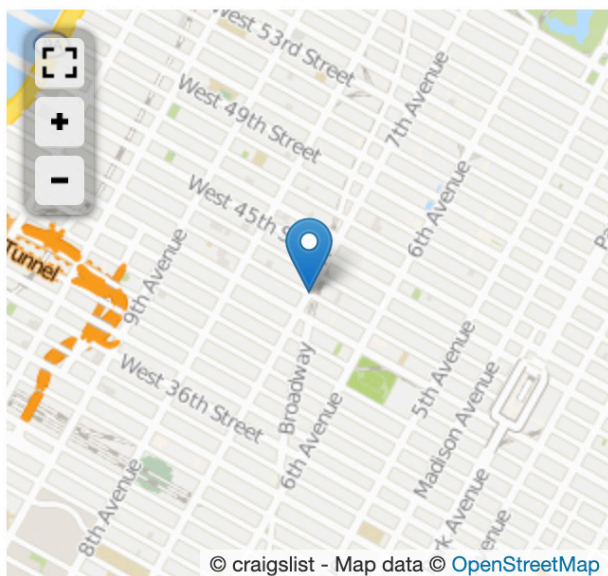

Cute tall bartender at bowery electric (New York)

Friday February 28,

I was wearing a white shirt and a chain choker,
my hair was curly and shoulder length.

I sat at the bar and kept getting refills of water,
mostly so I could talk to you,
I didn't work up the courage.

Your name starts with a C
in case you think it's you!

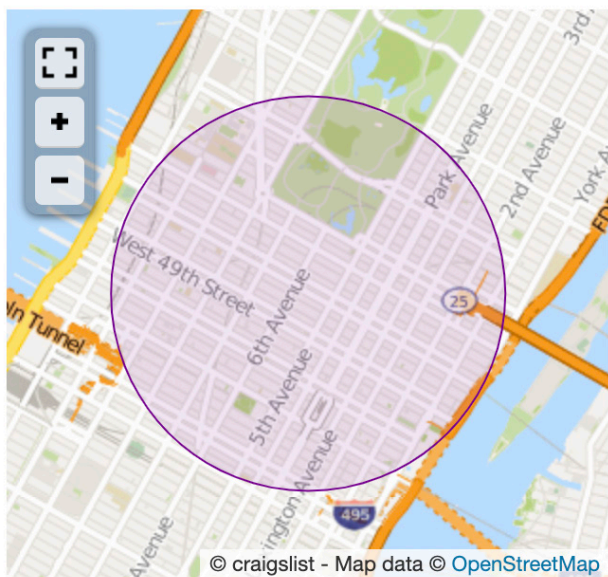

7th ave near West 43rd street

Guy with curly hair and leather pants (Midtown West)

Tall guy with curly hair
in Times Square
wearing a brown jacket and flared leather pants.

I saw you walking by Touro,
you looked like a rockstar,
email me

Saw you at the Errol Morris Screening Moma 3/6 (New York)

Me: Blond. Tall. Ethereal.

You: Tall, Brown Curly Hair, Wearing a Hat.

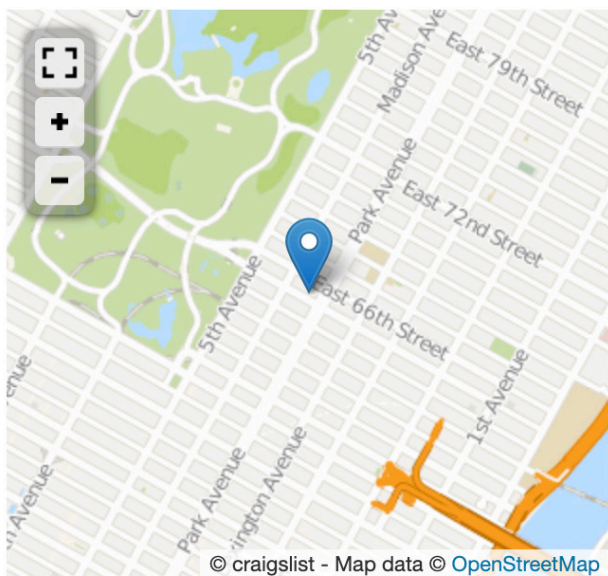

We first crossed paths at the entrance and you asked me for directions to the screening. I said

“Yeah we are,
but we don’t know where we’re going”

We both realized the entrance was further down the street.
As we were walking in, I stared
at you and we locked eyes, traded a coy smile.

Once we got in I couldn’t keep my eyes off you,
peeking back a couple of rows for a glance.

By the time the movie was over you were gone.
I can’t stop thinking about you.

Regency Hotel Bar - Friday Night (March 7) - The One That Got Away (Upper East Side)

We kept catching each other's eyes, and I should have said something.

You were sitting at the end of the bar at the Regency Hotel on Park Ave, chatting with your friend.

Blonde, beautiful, with a smile that lit up the room.

I arrived around 8:30 PM, and from the moment I sat down, I couldn't help looking your way.

Circumstances kept me from saying hello
I wish I had.

Before I knew it, you were gone.

I even asked the bartender
about you,
but no luck.

I was wearing a dark blue shirt and a gray coat.

If you saw me too and felt the same spark. I'd love the chance to say hello now.

74th

curly hair dude on bus to laguardia airport (Jackson Heights)

Forgot to ask for socials, dude

w the curly hair from the bronx
chatting w me on the bus to laguardia

You said “Whenever, Whatever, However” (Crown Heights)

Met on a dreary day,
at a bar on Franklin no
no Franklin,
I think it was the place owned by the twins,
either way, it was some years ago.

We spoke for a while and seem to have a lot in common, like reading and researching for no reason other than to know things,

you wore jeans and had a fatty,
I didn't say anything at the time but i was like damn when you got up to go the restroom.

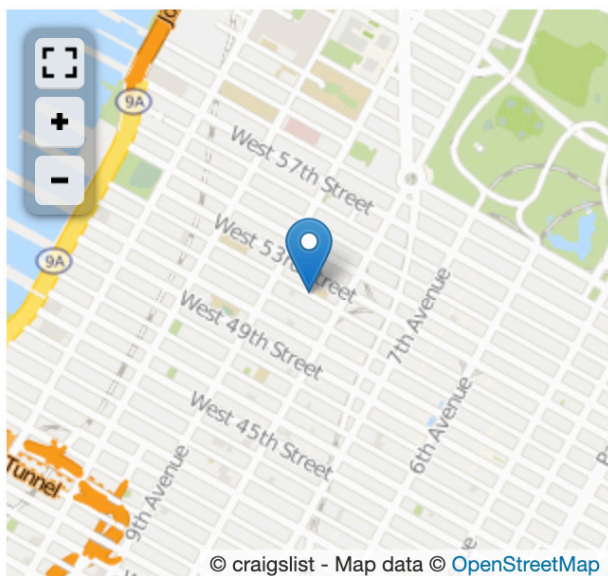

I was the tall, handsome, dark skin,
non existent writer, you never said what you did but you talked about the life you wanted to live
which was filled with travel,

you may have been a mom we never got that far in the personal lives of each other.

But we danced to Maxwell, first it was Something Something and than the title of this email, and
you said - What He Said
And got your coat and left -

I was in something so i wouldn't dare follow,
i wanted to to follow - oh i did bump into you at Atlantic Terminal though a few years later, at Target Either Way I'm free now and-

348 West 52nd Street

Blake therapy night club. (Midtown West)

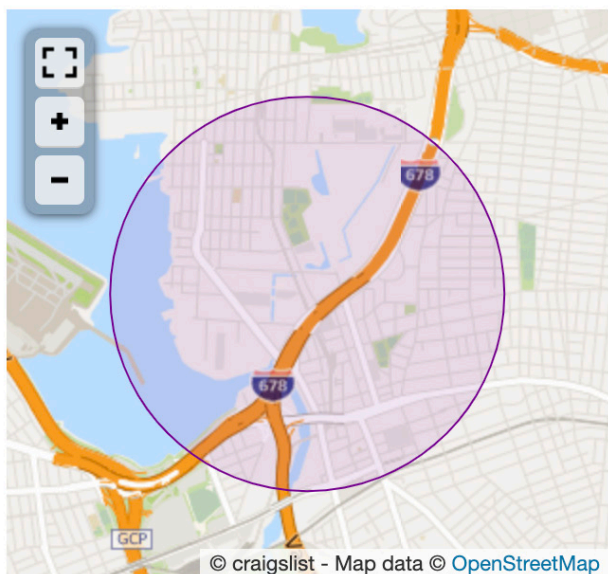

Met you at therapy night club
twenty years ago

C Train Uptown Reader in Black Beanie (Midtown)

You were sitting across from me, reading (I was too) and got off at 42nd Street.

You made me blush,
would love to see you again

Flushing Gardens neighbor (Flushing)

Jianlan I'm staying
next door all next week.

I hope to see you very soon.
Bull

mini bike camper (Harlem / Morningside)

we talked about camping and biking in the winter also improvised tools

I got your text but my phone got wet that night and I couldn't unlock it again to save you in my contacts

im still down to camp and bike
in the city
contact me

weather is warming up now

things should be easier

impeach reagan on the F train 3/1 (Brooklyn)

I don't think eye contact on the train really counts as a missed connection, but I'm still thinking about it so here you go:

You had an impeach reagan pin
and a lot of keys on your belt loop.

I was in a blue knit scarf and a trench.
You left the train at Jay st and i stayed on.

What color was my coat and what logo was on your orange tote?

Adorable Guy with Sweet Eyes Who Works at Spoonbill (Williamsburg)

You work at Spoonbill bookstore,
have the most gentle kind eyes, and curly brown hair.

You are quite younger than me, but I have the biggest crush on you and want to take you on a date, and then read books to each other near the waterfront after while holding hands.

If you have a girlfriend, pretend you didn't see this!

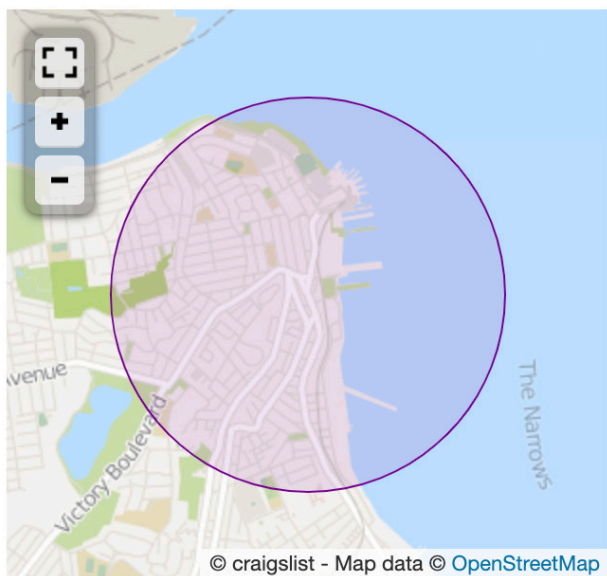

Nostrand

Guitar player with dark curls (Bedstuy)

I saw you - in a vision that was true - where you played for me
the perfect note,

and I'm left just wondering if I'll ever hear you play again.

You saw me with blue hair and a tie dye sweater. I know we'd both be better now.

Bay Street

Western Beef on Bay Street (Staten Island)

Friday AM. We shared glances but I was too intimidated to say hello. I believe you are straight and married.

Long shot but thought
I can try in my cowardly way. lol

Sat next to you on the plane (Queens)

I sat next to you for three hours from LaGuardia airport to Miami.

You seemed super sweet and busy with work stuff.

You seemed to be into fitness
with your Barry Bootcamp shirt.

You helped me
with tray table when my hands were completely full and we had a moment after.

We had black coffee together.
I was way tired. Shy.
I'm kicking myself for not talking to you.

W train (Astoria)

On a packed W train. We made eye contact and laughed over the ridiculous people who don't have any knowledge of personal space

lol. You got a seat and we made more eye contact as i got off.
I got off
at Broadway.

I'm a tall, lightskin black man.
Your eyes are amazing.
Lets get a drink sometime?
